after a decade in which women writers have gradually been given more recognition in the study of irish literature this collection proposes a reappraisal of irish women's writing by inviting dialogues with new or hitherto marginalised critical frameworks as well as with foreign and transnational literary traditions several essays explore how irish women writers engaged with european themes and traditions through the genres of travel writing the historical novel the monologue and the fairy tale other contributions are concerned with the british context in which some texts were published and argue for the existence of irish inflections of phenomena such as the new woman suffragism or vegetarianism further chapters emphasise the transnational character of irish women's writing by applying continental theory and french feminist thinking to various texts in other chapters new developments in theory are applied to irish texts for the first time casting the efforts of irish women in a new light the collection also includes explorations of the work of neglected or emerging authors who have remained comparatively ignored by irish literary criticism this book demonstrates the legacies of romanticism which animate the poetry and poetics of eavan boland gillian clarke john burnside and kathleen jamie it argues that the english romantic tradition serves as a source of inspiration and critical contention for these irish welsh and scottish poets and it relates this engagement to wider concerns with gender nation and nature which have shaped contemporary poetry in britain and ireland covering a substantial number of works from the 1980s to the 2010s the book discusses how boland and clarke as women poets from the republic of ireland and wales react to a male dominated and anglocentric lyric tradition and thus rework notions of the romantic it examines how burnside and jamie challenge adopt and revise romantic aesthetics of nature and environment the book is the first in depth study to read boland clarke burnside and jamie as post romantics by disentangling the aesthetic and critical conceptions of romanticism which inform their inheritance it develops an innovative approach to the understanding of contemporary poetry and literary influence
